FOUNDATION

2015 ANNUAL REPORT

American Academy of Allergy Asthma & Immunology Foundation

Funding research that leads to the prevention and cure of asthma and allergic and immunologic disease.

MESSAGE FROM THE COUNCIL CHAIR

The past year has seen a number of significant changes in the fundraising arm of the AAAAI, beginning with a name change from the ARTrust to the AAAAI Foundation. The new name clearly and importantly links us to our parent organization. In addition, the Foundation has also refocused its mission to “funding research that leads to the prevention and cure of asthma and allergic and immunologic disease.”

Patient care in our specialty is entering an exciting new era with major advances rapidly evolving. Technology is providing new medications and insight into the pathogenesis of the diseases we treat. Treatment is moving toward precision/personalized medicine. In food allergy, we are seeing prevention of sensitization. Greater understandings of immune deficiencies are continually emerging. To most effectively avail our specialty of these opportunities, we have committed the efforts of the AAAAI Foundation to supporting young investigators. With this focus, the Foundation is convinced that the specialty of Allergy and Immunology will grow as these young investigators identify new advances which will lead to improved care of our patients.

The most important step in achieving this mission is the continued and generous support of our members. The young investigators we fund will drive advances in our specialty. Your generous support will make this research funding possible and make the lives of our patients better.

Held in June of 2015, the Summit brought together researchers, clinicians, AAAAI leadership, former ARTrust Award recipients and external foundation executives for thoughtful conversation about the organization's future. Their recommendations were later approved by the AAAAI Board of Directors and included the name change to AAAAI Foundation, a revised leadership and reporting structure, and a primary research support focus through two annual Faculty Development Awards.

Name Change

Formerly the Allergy, Asthma & Immunology Education and Research Organization, Inc., or the ARTrust™, we are now known as the AAAAI Foundation. This name change became effective on September 1, 2015 and more closely links the AAAAI and its philanthropic arm while making our mission very clear.
